

West Virginia Collegiate Initiative to Advance Healthy Campus Communities

Wesley Thomas, West Virginia University
Robin L. Tabor, West Virginia State University

The West Virginia Collegiate Initiative to Advance Healthy Campus Communities (WVCIA) was chartered in 2008 as a membership-based organization to proactively address substance use disorders, violence, and mental health issues among college students.

WVCIA promotes healthy campus environments through:

- education
- advocacy
- and evidence-based practices

Funding partners include the West Virginia Department of Human Resources, Bureau for Behavioral Health, and the Governor's Highway Safety Program.

Through the use of evidence-based strategies, WVCIA promotes healthy campus environments through:

- self-regulatory initiatives
- information dissemination
- public policy influence
- cooperation with prevention partners and
- technical assistance

WVCIA currently receives grant funding through the Governor's Highway Safety Program, SAMHSA's Strategic Prevention Framework – Partnerships For Success program, and SAMHSA's State Opioid Response program.
